Our services

Leibniz-Institut für
Psychologie

The Leibniz Institute for Psychology (ZPID) in Trier (Germany) is an internationally recognized research-based psychology service center located in Trier (Germany) and is belonging to the Leibniz Association. ZPID is undergoing a strategic extension process aimed at becoming a one-stop, full-service provider supporting the entire spectrum of needs expressed by researchers and psychology professionals guided by the values of open science. In addition, ZPID is currently establishing research groups in meta-science and science acceptance.

Join the growing ZPID team! Current opening:

Postdoctoral Researcher (m/f/d)

(salary group TV-L E13, 100 %, 22 months)

Preferred start date is as soon as possible.

Duties and functions:

Intuitive information processing has clear advantages for human cognition but also undesirable outcomes such as stereotyping and other biases. These biases are reduced when people experience cognitive conflicts. In a DFG-funded project, we aim to test whether cognitive conflicts can reduce biases and increase fact-based decision making – in the experimental and work contexts. The postdoctoral researcher will conduct experiments on the impact of cognitive conflicts in simulated and actual work settings.

Tasks include:

- Developing research paradigms
- Programming experiments and analyzing data
- Presenting results at conferences and writing research articles
- Supervising research assistants

Your profile:

- PhD in social, I/O, or experimental psychology
- experienced in experimental research
- Interest in designing online interventions

- Profound knowledge of English

Please contact Prof. Dr. Kai Sassenberg (ksa@leibniz-psychology.org) for further information on tasks or profile.
